WORSHIP SCHEDULE

September 11th -- "WELCOME BACK, WELCOME HOME" -- Our Annual Intergenerational Ingathering Service: This is the beginning of the school year for our young people so we will be blessing their new beginnings with a Blessing of the Backpacks as a part of our Ingathering service. Be sure to bring yours along. Remember to bring a small vial of water from some place special to you. Children will remain for the entire service. INGATHERING BREAKFAST at 9 a.m. – Come join us!

September 18th --"REMEMBERING ROBBIE" -- Our beloved Minister Emeritus (and my predecessor) Rev. Robbie Walsh passed away last June after a valiant battle with Lois Body Dementia. Contact Catherine if you would like to participate in this special celebration of Robbie's life among us at FPC. (after church budget discussion)

September 25th --"DEFYING HATRED AND FEAR" -- On September 20th, PBS will air a documentary by Ken Burns entitled "Defying the Nazis." The film is the story of Martha and Rev. Waitstill Sharp, WWII Unitarians who secretly worked in Nazi-occupied Europe to rescue Jews, dissidents and refugee children. Islamophobia and the Syrian refugee crisis are modern day parallels to the bigotry the Sharps fought against. How are you carrying on the Sharps' legacy by defying hatred and discrimination today? (After church Annual Finance Meeting)

A MESSAGE FROM YOUR MINISTER...

Love cannot remain by itself – it has no meaning.

Love has to be put into action and that action is service.

*Whatever form we are,
able or disabled,
rich or poor,
it is not how much we do,
but how much love we put in the doing;
a lifelong sharing of love with others.*

A Lifelong Sharing – Hymnal, 562

Dear Friend,

Well the time has come for us all to gather once again for another church year at FPC!

This year will no doubt unfold with its own special joys and sorrows, but here are some things that at this point we can guarantee will make this year special:

- Our Interim DRE Ruth Owen will begin the second year of her three-year contract with us---- and you will see some new and exciting changes (big and small) in what goes on at FPC. Our worship schedule and children's programs will once again be organized around monthly themes. We are hoping that this year these themes will move deeper into our shared congregational life (like small group ministry and social justice) ----stay tuned! And speaking of worship, this church year we will gather for more "all-church" worship experiences --and some of our FPC worship traditions will have a bit of a new look.
- Our outreach into the community will expand in creative ways---for example FPC is launching a new monthly Coffee House called "Tuneful Brews" (Opening Night is Friday September 9th— come on by and bring some friends)
- Your minister will take a few months sabbatical time next winter to finish writing her project for her Doctor of Ministry. As many of you know, for the past several years I have been "picking away" at a Doctor of Ministry at Andover Newton Theological School. ANTS, as it is affectionately called, is the oldest graduate seminary in the United States and the nation's first graduate institution of any kind. But times change and for a variety of reasons organized religion is an increasingly unpopular institution these days. In November 2015, ANTS announced that it would sell its Newton campus after a presence of 190 years on that site. ANTS is being subsumed by Yale Divinity School, and since New Haven is a pretty long commute from Duxbury, your minister needs to finish her degree before ANTS leaves the area! (More information about my sabbatical will be forthcoming)

Interestingly enough, all of these items are actually related. Yes, church attendance and membership in all denominations are suffering a serious and steady decline, especially among Millennials. The topic of my DMIN work is "How Unitarian Universalists in New England Are Responding to the So-called 'Spiritual But Not Religious.'" During this Interim time, one of the thrusts of our work together is to consider deeply how we here at FPC are responding and reaching out to those who have spiritual leanings but are disinterested and/or distrustful of religious institutions.

My friend, we have a whole lot of LOVE here at First Parish Church, but “Love cannot remain by itself – it has no meaning.” My prayer for all of us at FPC is that this church year will be a yearlong sharing of love with others. I believe in our free faith—and I know you do too. So let’s join hands on Ingathering Sunday and move boldly together and LOVE THE HELL OUT OF ONE ANOTHER AND THE WORLD!! THE WORLD NEEDS US---AND WE NEED ONE ANOTHER.

Are you ready??? -- I sure am!! See you in church

Catherine

Happy New Year!

September always feels like the “new year” to me. As I begin the second of what will be my three years with you, I believe we have made a wonderful start on revitalizing the children and youth programming at FPC. Last year a great many of you took the time to fill out the (rather long) survey about the young peoples’ program. Two messages came through loud and clear. First, you want to preserve and reinvigorate beloved traditions like Pumpkin Sunday, the Holiday Feast and the Pageant, etc. And, second, you are ready to try new things to keep our children’s programming vital and relevant to young families’ lives.

In response, we have made some changes to the children’s program. We have reduced the number of class groupings so we have a more workable number of children in each group. We are deepening our commitment to monthly themes so everyone is on the same page. We are increasing the emphasis on worship as the center of our life together through Children’s Chapel and more all-church worship. And, we are increasing support for parents to include more spirituality in their everyday family life.

This year we are trying new things and tweaking old things. I don’t expect every innovation to be successful, but will try lots of things to see what works. We will be evaluating and welcoming feedback all through this process. Please, don’t be shy about letting me know what you think.

Finally, our other focus this year will be adult programming. There will be another survey (not quite as long, I promise) coming out in October. I will be gathering a task force to review all of our adult programming with an eye to making sure that all groups in our community are being served by programming that meets their interests. We will also be considering new programs and the best ways to communicate with the wider community about what we offer. If you think you might be interested in being a part of this task force, please let me know.

It will be an exciting year. I can’t wait to get started!

Don't miss this inspirational UU story of courage, cunning, and sacrifice by Rev. Waitstill and Martha Sharp from Wellesley Hills UU, founders of UUSC. Hear Ken Burns tell what making this movie meant to him in a trailer at UUSC.org/sharpstory. Artemis is the Sharp's grandson.

A National Moral Revival Movement event, inspired by Rev Dr. William Barber II, will take place on September 12 at 11am at the State House. Rev Barber calls for a moral revolution of our values and for us to lift our moral voices for justice in the public square. MA will be one of 25 states to deliver a moral call at our State House. This summer Rev Barber spoke eloquently at our UUA General Assembly, the Democratic National Convention, and recently at a Moral Revival gathering in Boston which was co-sponsored by UU Urban Ministry. UUs will be there in full-force on Sept 12! Google Rev Barber. If you would like to go together to this important justice event, please contact Nancy: nowakdux@gmail.com.

Spiritual direction is for anyone who is searching for deeper spiritual insights and for spiritual growth in the events of our hectic daily lives. This fall Catherine is offering Individual Spiritual Direction (participants meet with Catherine once a month for an hour or so). Contact Catherine via email at TheRevCatherine@aol.com or call her here at the church (781)934-6532 ext 3, to learn more about this unique ancient spiritual practice. Tuneful Brew Coffee House at FPC Debuts Sept. 9, 8 PM
$10/person suggested donation
8PM Open Mic, 9 PM Jo Henley

Yes! It is really happening. Thanks to Katy Boc and all her hard work, the coffee house is really happening. We are kicking off this once a month event on Friday, Sept. 9 at 8 PM. The show will begin with an open mic and then feature Jo Henley, a Boston-based roots-rock band that has been winning over fans and critics alike since 2006 with their unique blend of rock, folk, country, and bluegrass (<http://www.johenley.com>)

We are still seeking volunteers to help out with this fun event. Heidi Conner will be in charge of food but she could use bakers and help on the night of the show. Liz Christman could use help with set-up (starting at 6:30 PM), staffing the door and clean-up. And we all need help spreading the word! Please “Like” our Facebook page and share the posts, tell your friends and, most importantly, please come to our first concert.

For more information about the Tuneful Brew coffee house check out the website <http://tunefulbrew.bandzoogle.com>.

For anyone unfamiliar with the Caring Connection, our mission is to help our First Parish friends during times of need by connecting them with people within the congregation willing to help. Some of the things we do are to coordinate meals, provide rides, do errands and sometimes simply to give a call to offer support and a listening ear. We have a wonderful list of volunteers to call upon when something comes up. We encourage you to let us know if you or someone in the church could use some help. For the month of September our contact person is Michael Gardner. He can be reached at sgmgardner4746@gmail.com, 617-833-9606.

Diving Ocean Bluffs (Brant Rock, MA) - Story and Photos by Rob Robison

For the Duxbury First Parish Unitarian Universalist Church's Service Auction fundraiser, I offered a two-tank scuba dive for one or a one-tank scuba dive for two off my 15.5' Zodiac. Mike Gardner won, so we waited until both of our schedules cleared to get started. Mike wanted to do a few shore dives before rolling off my boat, which worked out well for me because my engine is in the shop getting cleaned out after in-taking some water condensation from the fuel tank on an outing earlier in May. We met at Ocean Bluffs on Friday morning (6-23-16) to make a shore dive. Fortunately, Mike has a local parking permit, so we offloaded my gear next to the central stairs at the Bluffs, and then I parked my car a block away. After suiting up, Mike and I hit the water on a gorgeous morning with clear skies, reasonable air temp (mid to high 70s), and clear water—at least 25' - 30' of vis, which is fabulous for New England. The incoming tide and swells made it a bit strenuous swimming out to our drop down point; consequently, we made a mutual decision to submerge and continue underwater, which is much easier than fighting the surface conditions.

The last time I dove this area was around 1991. At that time, there was plenty of sea life from in close to shore to all the way out as far as you could swim on the surface or underwater. Storms in the ensuing years have changed the bottom significantly. Much of the rock and boulder bottom has been pushed on shore leaving huge patches of sand behind. Increasing ocean temperatures, overfishing, runoff, and other forms of pollution have had a noticeable effect on the underwater life around this area. I was sad to see that the sand areas were devoid of much life—no moon snails, whelks, hermit crabs, horseshoe crabs, baby, juvenile, or adult flounder, and the like that used to populate such areas. A bright note was that there were literally billions of tiny black specks clinging to any substrate they could find. On closer inspection, these black specks turned out to be mussel spat. Google tells us that: Mussel spat develop from a floating larval stage. The larvae attach themselves to seaweed or ropes and develop into miniature shellfish 0.3 mm long – about the width of a needle tip.

These were a bit larger than a needle tip, since they were visible to the naked eye. At first blush, they look like gypsy moth droppings, but if you look carefully you can see they are clearly mussels in a very early stage of development. As Mike and I unhurriedly drifted along, we followed a metal pipe of some sort that appeared at odd moments on our zig zaggy underwater path, until we finally reached some deeper water and places where lobsters and other small fish such as Cunnners (a type of wrasse), other small fry, and sponges could be found. We turned the dive sometime after reaching a depth of 25' and slowly headed back allowing the tide to wash us in to shore. Eighty minutes after beginning the dive, we clambered out of the water, stowed our gear and headed down to the Brant Rock Hop for lunch and to warm up. Despite 7 or 8mm wetsuits, an hour and 20-minute submersion, and a relatively warm 57°-58°F water temp., one starts to chill during such a long dive. Regardless, it was a great way to spend a Friday morning in the early summer.
